The threat is real...

The fall of the Soviet Union and the end of the cold war marked the beginning of International Crime Syndicates. The Russian Syndicates, led by billionaire Oligarchs, have since expanded and merged internationally creating the greatest threat to global stability, responsible for more crime, violence, and destabilization of governments than any Terrorist Organization could hope for.

Today their reach is deep, their numbers massive, and they have become near untouchable as they influence political parties and policy in the West and around the world.

Set in multiple countries, BLEU revolves around a newly formed multi-national law enforcement unit empowered to break the stranglehold of International Crime Syndicates, which are now credited with controlling 20% of the global economy.

As the world's economies struggle, as the great divide between rich and poor widens, International Crime Syndicates get stronger, richer, and pose a salient threat to the stability of the world, a threat that has gone unchallenged far too long.

Set in several cities on six continents, BLEU delivers an unrivaled blend of seductive imagery surrounding bigger than life characters in an almost surreal world. It is here that international characters and cultures are thrust together in the high stakes, hybrid world of protected organized crime.

International Crime Syndicates have a substantial, well organized and interlinked presence in over 60 countries. Their main objectives are to exploit the local population and resources while establishing safe havens, distribution centers and trade routes for their operations. Because of its instability, Africa has become a center of operations. And with its beauty, wealth and transitional status, South Africa has become a destination of choice.

Cape Town has become the Mecca of the world's elite. Its pristine coastlines, posh beach communities, and balmy summer nights are compared to the Cote d'Azur. Its seedier and dangerous underbelly is linked to the world's worst offenders.

Over 190 International Crime Syndicates have set up shop in Africa. From here, the top bosses of the most sophisticated and notorious syndicates are able to run their global empires virtually unchecked.

South American Drug Cartels, the Russian Mafia and Chinese Triad are among the most prolific and violent, incorporating global gang operations within their organizations. Behind them are the Nigerian Syndicates, considered the world's fastest growing and most dangerous threat.

On the bottom of the food chain are the ruthless local gangs in countries around the world who provide the muscle and protection. They include MS-13, Dub C (Wah Chings) and The Americans.

Drug and human trafficking, money laundering, kidnapping, prostitution, identity theft, banking scams, counterfeiting, diamond smuggling, arms deals, corruption and murder – these are the trades plied by the syndicates, and money is always the reward.

Faced with the growing threat BLEU goes head to head with the syndicates. But the Crime Lords were here first and it's an uphill battle for the newly formed unit who are only beginning to see just how strong and powerful the syndicates are, and just how deeply rooted into politics and big business they have become.
